Learners First is delighted to welcome back Kirsty Godfrey to lead this live webinar briefing for school leaders. Kirsty has worked in senior leadership positions in a wide range of schools for over 15 years and as an educational consultant. Her most recent post, before joining Ofsted, was as the head of primary in an all-through school and this post involved setting up the primary provision from scratch and developed her interest and expertise in early years.

In this online webinar Kirsty Godfrey, HMI, will provide delegates with a valuable insight into what inspectors will be considering when they look at how well schools teach children to read, what high quality reading provision looks like and how schools can better prepare. The webinar content is designed to be informative and practical, and to help school leaders to navigate successfully the current key messages regarding early literacy.
