New! English Subject Leader Network

Learners First is delighted to offer a series of new networking opportunities for English Subject Leaders in primary schools. The sessions, facilitated as face-to-face events, aim to provide a professionally facilitated forum through which colleagues from different schools, MATs and geographical areas with responsibility for leading English in their settings can come together.

The networking sessions are offered as part of Learners First's strategic partnership with the experienced and extremely skilled and knowledgeable senior leaders at Humberstone Academy, winners of the UK's Literacy School Of The Year. Following feedback from our other English Hub events and wider literacy programmes (including the writing projects), many leaders expressed that they would welcome, and benefit from, the opportunity to continue their professional learning, networking and sharing of good practice. Thus, the subject leader sessions have been designed to provide opportunities for subject leaders to collaborate on common challenges, share strategies and engage with, and learn from, high quality research and impactful evidence. Key updates from the DfE and English Hub, as well as other pertinent research findings will be shared and discussed to ensure subject leaders have access to the latest information and, importantly, are professionally supported in the strategic interpretation and implementation in their own schools. The sessions have been designed by, and will be facilitated by, serving senior school leaders to ensure they are authentic, pertinent and reflect the current realities of English Subject Leadership in the primary sector.
